

Come see Alliance Flight Training's new Location!

Sick of spending valuable flight time defrosting wings? Tired of waiting for preheating and acceptable oil temperatures?

Forget pre-flying outside in the bitter winter wind. Alliance Flight Training is moving to a building with enough space to hangar its entire fleet!

With a 15,400 square foot main building, Alliance's new location will make morning winter flights a viable and fun option. These heated hangers completely remove the need to defrost or pre-heat your engine. So stay warm and do your preflight indoors.

Check out the new address, 37835 Astra Way, Watkins, CO 80137. To reach the new location, turn right on East 51st Avenue and drive east for several blocks. Your destination will be the final building on the right. Parking is available in the parking lot south of the new building.

Please note that Alliance's Front Desk staff will be moving equipment between the two locations, and so may be unavailable. Please check the other location for staff.